Liberty Square...a Singular Destination

With more than a bit of panache, Liberty Square has earned a reputation for the multiple experiences available throughout the lovely white complex. And the spirit of Liberty Square begins at the front door. Greeting visitors, owners Richard Wegner, his wife Pamela, and Chris Anderson, as well as their staff are prepared to provide a pleasant and memorable visit to Liberty Square.

“We look forward to creating lasting relationships with our customers, many of whom often become friends,” said Richard. “And we feel that by providing an aesthetically pleasing atmosphere and a multitude of experiences under one roof, visitors will come back time after time.”

A testimony to thoughtful and meticulous planning, the trio of owners has created a complex of shops that feature everything from gourmet food items to stylish fashions, one-of-a-kind gift cards and designer jewelry, handbags for every occasion, scarves to tickle fancy, multiple dining experiences... and all under one roof!

Originally designed as separate shops, under their new ownership, Richard, Pamela, and Chris redesigned the complex in 2007. "Our grand plan was to provide all services under one roof." Today, visitors can easily navigate Liberty Square, moving from one room to the next with ease.

"Visitors can enjoy a meal in The Bistro, shop all of our different boutiques, sample some of our gourmet food items, and relax on our patio of our terrace or porch with a glass of wine.

The weather is never a deterrent to enjoying everything Liberty Square has to offer."

With a Door County history that begins in 1976, Richard and Pamela transitioned from vacationers to year-round residents seven years ago. The move to the peninsula and their keen interest in providing an exceptional experience for Door County's visitors inspired them to develop Liberty Square.

"We worked very hard at recognizing what is special about Door County for the visitor who is also a shopper," explained Pamela. "It is the unique, the fun and fancy, sometimes products from a designer or a local artist, but always creative items that we bring to Liberty Square for a diversity of tastes and interests. We search for unique fashionable merchandise that one wouldn't find anywhere else.

"And it is important that we have smart-priced items. We want everyone to be comfortable shopping at Liberty Square, and to be able to leave with a treasure that is affordable for them," she continued. "And to feel that they can wander through the shops and linger, to participate in Liberty Square's relaxed atmosphere."

A native of Oconto, Wisconsin, Chris Anderson brings another dimension to Liberty Square. A long-time visitor to the peninsula, Chris has traveled extensively as an export/import buyer whose resume includes a position in mainland China. Chris's expertise has enabled him to provide products that represent the world market.

Paramount to the Liberty Square experience is the pleasure of food, glorious food. "We love exceptional cuisines and wine," said Pamela, "and wanted to share that with our visitors." The Gourmet Foods and Wine Shop features an array of delectable cheeses and deli selections. Parisian style homemade breads, pastries, cakes, and desserts are available for an on-site treat or for take away. Create a supper for a sunset picnic or select a wedge of cheese and a bottle of wine for a romantic evening in... it's all waiting for visitors to Liberty Square.

And if the ease of eating out is on the menu, The Bistro at Liberty Square is a rare treat. From the quotes in the recessed ceiling to the spaciousness of the seating area, The Bistro provides a pleasant atmosphere to leisurely dine... breakfast, lunch, dinner and everything in between. Executive chef Josh Blevins features some of the freshest ingredients available, often from local growers.

"In addition to our regular menu, we host wonderful special events throughout the year," Chris related, "everything from ethnic-themed dinners to wine tastings." Added Richard, "And this year we are introducing a late-night light appetizer, dessert, and drink menu for enjoying after the theatre or a concert."

Although Liberty Square features fabulous fashion, the multi-boutique complex is not just for women. "Men have discovered us and they find the shops interesting," said Pamela. "So many men enjoy cooking and have a great appreciation of wines, so they spend time exploring the food emporium.

"And, of course, we have the wide-screen television for the sports fans, the Board Room for spending quiet time with a book, and free Wi-Fi access throughout Liberty Square for easy access to the Internet whether for work or play.

With its traditional white façade reminiscent of New England, Liberty Square is warm and welcoming. "Everyone who walks through our doors is special," Richard emphasized. "We want our visitors to feel they are friends. That's what makes Liberty Square and Door County special every day of the year."
